LONDON, Oct. 25. Hurled back from the coast by the fire of the French and British warships, the German troops. after a week of the most violent fighting, have turned inland and forced their way across the Yscr canal west of Dixmude. Pressing their advantage, the Germans, in a mighty effort to gain a victory, continued rushing forward all the reinforcements that can be spared, and in their official reports claim to be slowly but decisively pushing the allies back.

Amendment No. 1, which will appear on the ballot at the N ber election is one of the most destandly attempts over made by the special interests to helple the tree use of the miliative and refer udam

Every friend of popular government should strongly oprose this may pased amendment (No. 1 on the ballat) as it is a restriction upon the free and univilimised exercise by the possile of these reserve powers by voting their condemnation at smendagent No. 1:

The proposed restriction provides as follows

"Whenever any measure initiated ander the authority of this section shall be RELECTED at such election, such measure or any other measure ure of the same substance, theracter or purpose or design to accomplish the same end either directly or indirectly, and either by state legislation or by amendment to the constitution, shall not be initiated not shall any petition thereof be flied; for submission at held within six years from the election at which the REJECTED meas

As an illustration in the present election, should Amendment No de carry, and should Probibition Amendment (No. 7) also carry, there is nothing to prevent the liquor corporations from initiating a new law to repeal the prohibition amendment at the next election.

But should Amendment No. I carry and the statewide prohibition amendment be defeated, then a measure unividing for statewide probible tion could not be initiated or submitted within six years, or until 1920.

The origin of Amendment No. 1, of course, is known by all to have been primarily conceived in the interests of the brewery and cylisky gang as well as the other special interests in which to perpetuate the saloon in Colorade just as long as possible.

TYGTE NO ON AMENDMENT NO I

MOTE TEST ON AMENDMENT NOTA

Amendment to a unithe healest is the stated de prohibition meas west. While you so into the judge on election dot. You TES on this amendment the first thing you do. This is vitally important in view

Remember, the brewers corporations are with to receive their death blow by the adoption of Amendment No. 2, but legitimate business will come into its own when the salomis close their doors and Colorado will witness a wave of prosperity such as she has never experienced.

Beware of the crafts agents of the whisky, gang. Look out for the eleventh hour besther will scatter about leaders in the prohibition tight Remember, the salout justness is founded open has and vilift ation. The people of Colorado are specially interested in the result of the halloting November 3 on governor and state-wide prohibition. They desire early returns of the votes on those contests, and such early returns will be a safeguard against fraud, besides obviating the aggravating delays that have been customary.

We the undersigned, therefore respectfully suggest and request that the judges of election in every precinct in the state proceed to ascertain before making any other count the complete vote in their precinct for governor and on the prohibition air a ment, and immediately notify their respective chairmen and clerks by telephone, of the count on those contests

TOURISTS AND PROHIBITION

THE Booze Men's League of Denver is tremendously concerned over the possible tate of the Pikes Peak Region as a tourist resort in the event that Colorado goes dry. It has even printed a special folder for the delectation of our people which tells the horrible fate of "an elephant without a trunk it would starve to death." The analogy is not altogether clear, but we assume that our solicitous friends of the Booze Men's League would have us believe that the Pikes Feak Region would die like a trunkless elephant if its tourists could not obtain a plentiful supply of alcoholic refreshments.

The Booze Men's League, in its_treatment of this phase of the subject, is indulging its penchant for prevarication even more assiduously than in its discussions of other aspects of the wet-and-dry issue. It has covered the billboards throughout the state with flaming posters which ask the citizen whether he would rather have conventions or prohibition, the inference being that conventions never come to a dry town. The fruth-is that John Barleycorn has got such a tight grip on Denver, on its municipal government, its Chamber of Commerce and other pseudo-boosting agencles, that Denver actually does not know the attitude of conventions toward dry towns. Denver honestly believes that a convention, regardless of its character and personnel, is made up of people who attend merely for an opportunity to get gloriously drunk without letting their families and friends at home know anything about it.

And Denver goes after that kind of conventions. It reckons its own benefits in direct ratio to the amount of booze it can pour into its visitors in return for their cash? This is the avowed and staunchly defended policy of the city. Let a District Attorney indicate his intention of enforcing the liquor laws during a convention week and all Denver rises against him the newsnapers, the Chamber of Commerce, the various hot-air clubs, and prominent citizens generally. "Keep em soused until they're broke," is the Denver watch-word while entertaining a convention. This is not a baseless assertion; it is a matter of history. It occurred not so long ago when Deputy District Attorney Wayne C. Williams wanted to enforce the law against the allnight saloons and cates.

Consider the actual facts about conventions and dry towns. On Monday, November 9, the fourth American Road Congress will open its annual convention in Atlanta, the capital of a prohibition state and the higgest dry city in the country. This is a convention of national imporrance and will be attended by delegates named by the governors of the various states.

Now it happens that in the convention of the Road Congress at Detroit last year Denver was an active aspirant to the honor of entertaining it this year, but lost out to Atlanta, which was dry then, as it is now. The fact that Denver is saturated to the dripping point may or may not have had anything to do with its loss of the convention. The point is that the Ameriean Road Congress preferred holding its convention in dry Atlanta rather than in wet Denver.

The value of a convention to the city that entertains it is usually reckoned according to the average daily spending capacity of its delegates, in so far as this can be determined. The Chicago Association of Commerce has made a thorough investigation of this subject and compiled figures which show the approximate spending capacity of every organization in the country which holds conventions. The Shriners stand at the head of the list, and it is estimated that its members spend on an average $12.60 a day throughout the

Last summer the Shriners held their convention in Atlanta. Think of it! Denver wanted them; they could have gone there and remained happily pickled for the entire week. The fid would have been off. and no arrests made. But deliberately, with their eyes open and a full realization of what they were doing, they went to dry Atlanta. And strangely enough, they were perfectly satisfied. Incredible as it may seem to the Denver boosters who believe that a man cannot be contented unless he is tirunk, there were no complaints.

Howard Gelbert, secretary of the Ad Men's Club of Atlanta, says;

We handled the Shriners, 40,000 of them, during their convention a few weeks ago without a single kick. We cite you the fact that since prohibition went into effect in the state of Georgia, Atlanta has had over five times the number of conventions, all greater in importance at a sttendance; than the previous conventions which we had before prohibition went in to effect. Thinking people do not attend conventions to drink whisky.

Is there any significance in the fact that although Georgia has state-wide prohibition, and Atlanta is the largest dry city in the United States, Atlanta also entertains more conventions than any other city in the United States, wet or dry?

So far as the Pikes Peak Region is concerned, let it be remembered that a majority of our summer visitors come from Kansas and Oklahoma, which are prohibition states, and from Texas, the map of which is literally speckled with dry towns. Will any hotel man in Colorado Springs testify that the Kansas and Oklahoma tourists come here to buy booze, or that he honestly believes they would stay away if they could not get it here? Will any of them say that visitors from dry states and dry towns are any thirstier when they get here than those who come from wet localities?

The talk about prohibition killing the pleasure resort business is the same sort of tommyrot as the talk about it killing business generally. It is disproved in the history of Long Beach, California, which under prohibition grew from a village of two thousand people to a city of forty-five thousand in twelve years. Its mayor, in a letter dated July 16, last, says, "Apart, from our climate and unique location we have no greater asset than that of a dry town. I believe 50 per cent of our population came here because no liquor is allowed to be sold in Long Beach." And we cite this further evidence from a pamphlet published by the Anti-Saloon League:

Other dry tourist places are Asbury Park, N. J., Ocean Grove, N. J., Daytons, str., ave the state of Maine is largely a toulist state. How. William T. Haines, Governor of Maine, says: "It ing outside the state during the passent year for entertainment on our seashors and inland lakes and other ways in which we selve a large tourist population annually over FIFT I MILLION DOL-ressible from New York city. Asbury Park is a dry resort not so easy to reach. Asbury Park prospers each season, while all of the hotels at Brighton Boson, with one of the wontiers, are: in the hands of receivers.

Let no citizen of the Pikes Peak Region, who is sincerely interested in its welfare, be deluded by the specious argument that prohibition will deprive it of its tourist patronage or of the residence here of a desirable class of people. If such a thing happened it would be the first case of the kind, and there are plenty of contrary cases on which to base judgment.

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW, the most radically brilliant English man of letters, recently gave out a remarkable interview that set all England gasping. THE COUNTRY SCHOOLS. To the Editor of The Gasatte

Two years ago there was a spirit of progress in the country echools of El Paso county. In comparing the present conditions with those of two or three years ago, one finds a vast difference. Now things are at a standatill. School boards backed by and with the cooperation of the county superintendent made efforts to improve conditions in the rural schools. In all instances the welfare of the teacher was considered. Wherever financial conditions would srows upward any to speak of. Then permit it the school boards were ussed to raise sale

At present the teachers of this county are underpaid for the amount of work done by them. The requirements are that they shall be well educated and experienced, and that their entire time and attention shall be devoted to the school work. But, understhe, present conditions even if a teacher asks for a better salary and for the cooperation of the superintendent her request is flatly refused. The rural teachers feel that, they need a warm friend in the

What we do not have but what we do need is a founty superintendent who has taught a country school and one who sid appreciate the position of a teacher in such a school. A county superintendent who has not forgotten that she was herself onceunexperienced, that all, teachers are quite human and that the aspect way to success, in its larger sense, is to possess an understanding sympathy for others.

Too Good to Be True

BY RUTH CAMERON

"Jack is so foolish," said a Lady-across-the-way o another neighbor last spring. "What do you suppose he has done now. He's bought puncture-proof tires for his automobile. He really believes that they are practical and that he will have no more

"Aren't there any really puncture-proof tires?" asked the other.

"Of course not!" said the first speaker. "Don't you suppose that if there were really puncture-proof fires everybody would have them? "I suppose so." said her neighbor.

Now I don't know sagahing. about the merits of nunctureproof tires. But I do not believe that the argument the Lady-across-the-way used is a final one, by any means, even though it may be a popular one. Most of us subscribe to the old adage. "Be not the first by which the new is tried, not yet the last to lay the old aside." Hearing of something new and novel designed to add to our comfort, efficiency or peace of mind, we are inclined to discount its claims. "If it were as good as they say, everybody. would use it.' And so we walt and see: It is human nature, I suppose, to eye askance mything better than what we are accustomed to it is that sense of distrust that one New York banker understood when he told another that if he should try to peddle five-dollar gold pieces for 15 cents on any street corner, there would be no buyers. One of my friends recently heard of a house for rate. The neighborhood was unquestionably good, the house itself seemed well built and well planned

The people who were selling it were above reproach;

When an alfalfa plant is firmly established it is as hard to root out and eradicate as a congressman who has been placing government appointments where they will do him the most good.

After a farmer has induced # 100acre alfalfa field to grow blithely through the long hot summer, he leads a gay and carefree life, skimming his field with a mower whenever he needs a new sutomobile, and piling. up mountains of alfalfs which contribute cheerfully to the high price of meat by selling at $15 a ton. Our notion of the ideal employment is to nang around home all winter and spring reading a good book, and then go out under a four-scre straw hat in the summer and bale up a few bonds in an alfalfa field. Small Colleges Force Final Recognition as Real Footballists From Big Sedate Teams! Yale's Showing Peculiarly Trying

NEW YORK, Oot 25,-The most advanced type of serial maleri aven with nessed on eastern gridirons furnished the sensational climax in Saturday's games. Forward passes, lateral passes and field geals all served to produce a series of startling upsets unequaled on any one day in many years.

Small college teams, which have been fighting for recognition alengaide the playens of the larger universities, brake down the invisible parriers which separated the two clauses, leaving coaches and critics stunned by the overthrew of form and tradition.

The Yale university eleven, fondly universities were concerned. Forward believed by its adherents to be on the pauses and field goals Tigured promimarch for championship menors, fell before the powerful team representing Washington and Jefferson university, an institution with an enrollment of approximately 300 students. The Pennsylvanishets, with one of the best records in the east during the last two years, were not underestimated by the Elis, for last season they held the marked M. L. R. Return to Canetic Blues to a no-stone He, and two works ago forced Harvard to play at top speed to wip 16 to 9. The splendid showing made by Yale ageirst Notre Dame, a week ago, however, caused the supporters of the Blue to believe Tale was regaining the place formerly held by New Haven elevens.

Harvard, for the tecond time in a fortnight, barely staved off defeat by a last-minute rush, which tied the lead previously gained by Penn State. The Crimson, waskened by the absence of Logan, Mahan, Pennock, Hardwick and other regulars, was completely outplayed by the opposing t .= m. and but for several fumbles at critical moments by Penn State, would have been delicively defeated.
